All that wealth and learning had to offer could not throttle nor thwart the faithful training of the home. If parents were worried about the danger of public education – as well they may be – perhaps they should look to their own home teaching of their child first ...

7

The time and place to save a child must be from crib to college 'in the home' under the daily teaching by word and example of devout parents who love Christ and know His word."

(McGarvey, op. cit., page 85)
